

Bridges attends the Ravens' Public Practice and gets a surprise visit from Ray Rice!

August 4, 2012

On August 4, Bridges received 60 invitations to the Baltimore Ravens' public practice at M&T Bank Stadium. Students, volunteers, and staff enjoyed club level seating, a tour of the visitors locker-room, and an opportunity to meet a Ravens all-star. Following the practice, students traveled underneath the stadium to a surprise visit from Ray Rice, where they were allowed to ask questions, get autographs and pictures, and in one case, even challenge Ray to an open-field tackle in 8 years. The evening was made possible by the Ravens Honor Rows Program presented by M&T Bank, which salutes youth who provide outstanding service to their communities. This is the third time the Bridges Program has been honored since 2009.

Students and volunteers enjoy their view from the club level.

Students line up to get autographs from Ray Rice.

Ray Rice surprises the group at the end of the day and congratulates them on all their hard work.

The group poses for a shot to end the evening's events.
