

View Into the Future Week at Bridges July 6 - July 9, 2010

View into the Future Week provides opportunities for Bridges students to get a glimpse into a variety of career paths. During this week students went on trips to the Baltimore Museum of Industry (grade 4), St. Joe's Medical Center (grade 5), Baltimore City Police Department (grade 6), Goucher College (grade 7), Towson University and M&T Bank Stadium (grade 8), and Loyola University and the Maryland Club (grade 9).

Students also heard from career speakers like Ray Baker, radio personality at Howard University, Pulitzer Prize nominated photographer Monica Lopossay, Derek Stikeleather, an attorney and former teacher, Julie, a detective with Baltimore CSI, and Dr. LaPrincess Brewer of Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Fifth grade students learn how to suture on chicken thighs at St. Joe's Medical Center.

Ninth graders pose with language arts teacher Larry Tittle and Pat Hudson of RBC Wealth Management during their etiquette luncheon at the Maryland Club.

Ninth graders get a taste of the college experience by taking their regular math lesson with Mrs. Breitmeyer in a classroom at Loyola University.

Fifth graders develop their balance, focus, and concentration during their yoga class with volunteer instructor Deb Donofrio.

LaPrincess Brewer, MD, MPH, talks to the seventh grade students about setting goals, overcoming obstacles, and seizing opportunities.
