

Baltimore Week at Bridges June 28 - July 2, 2010

Bridges Baltimore Week kicked off with two great speakers, Rob Kasper and Jed Kirschbaum, both of The Baltimore Sun. Later in the week, students visited local landmarks the National Aquarium (grade 4), Camden Yards (grades 5-8), and WJZ TV (grade 9). This combination of speakers and trips expanded students' knowledge of Baltimore and provided teachers with great tools to enhance classroom learning.

There were many other exciting moments this week, including Student-Staff events, the debut of the Ninth Grade News Show (Bridges take on video production and public speaking,) morning academic classes like Mrs. Real's fifth grade math class, pictured here, and afternoon activities like Mr. Chun's health class.

The Ninth Grade News Team prepares to shoot its first news segment of the summer.

Bridges fourth graders await the 4-D show at the National Aquarium with RBC Mentor, Andrew Kuhn.

Fifth grade students trace their body profiles in Mr. Chun's health class.

Fifth grade math teacher Rorie Real uses a hose, protractor, and tape measure to explain angles to her students.

Bridges Director Rob Paymer introduces Baltimore Sun Photographer Jed Kirschbaum to the fourth, fifth, and sixth grade students.