

Summer Jobs at Irvine Builds for the Birds

Week of July 5-8, 2011

This summer, four Bridges high school students have paid summer jobs at Irvine Nature Center coordinated through the YouthWorks Summer Jobs Program. Over the course of their six weeks working at Irvine, the students will assist in Irvine's summer camp, help with environmental restoration projects, learn about the business functions of the Center, and work on assorted special projects. This week, students spent a day making birdhouses for Irvine's new aviary. Below are a few snapshots of the birdhouse making project.

Malcolm creates pilot holes on one of the sides of his birdhouse.

Kristina drills in brackets to the back of her birdhouse.

Briana holds a board in place for Darien to drill.

Darien measures the angles of the roof as Briana makes the marks.
